

Distance course: Habitability

Photo: Nina Lindfors

Habitability is a concept to measure and develop the attractiveness of an island. The process creates new ideas and practical possibilities, and it sets the stage of change.

Target group

Islanders, practitioners, academicians etc. All committed to small island development.

Cost

A cost fee of 150 € per persons applies for all participants.

Application criteria

In the selections of participants, a short motivation text, including a preliminary description of the case island is required.

Deadline for applications

March 28, 2021

Course outline

The course consists of five parts with online sessions of three hours each. In between the participants study on their own (literature, assignments, and individual feedback.

Program and date

April 6 - The Change Processes

April 20 - The Habitability Index

May 4 - Serious Creativity

May 18 - Action Plan

June 4 - Evaluation and general feedback

Course teacher

Christian Pleijel

Guest lecturers

Godfrey Baldacchino, Louis Brigand, Søren Hermansen, Tanasis Kizos, Cecilia Lundberg, Tonino Picula, Owe Ronström, Siv Sandberg and Nenad Starc

For more information and application:

www.abo.fi/en/centre-for-lifelong-learning/habitability