

WELCOME!

Hi there! A warm, hearty welcome to you, from our beautiful campus in Vaasa.

I'm Enam Zikpi, a master's student in Teaching and Learning from Ghana. I'm excited to meet you as you begin this new chapter.

Alongside my studies, I've discovered a love for craftwork. Believe it or not, this year was my first time ever making a handicraft. I ended up creating an abstract farmer watering a flower and a mini book rack. Working with wood has become a surprising joy for me in the craft class. I'd be happy to tell you more about the process and show you the finished pieces when we meet.

A typical day for me ends with a relaxing stroll along the beach, taking photos of the scenery, breathing in the calm breeze, and delighting in nature. I also love connecting with people, listening to their stories, and sharing experiences. As someone who had had the confounding, exciting, and sometimes startling experience of moving to a new country, I understand how it feels to start fresh in a new place. You're not alone. I'm here to help you navigate this beginning and feel at home.
